

Peaceful Intentions

Your intentions express the clarity of your expression or your level of self-realization. Intentions are either veiled or they are transparent. When veiled, you are a source of depletion in the world and are at odds with your environment...in dissonance with your true nature. When veiled, you create layers of concealment between you and the Infinite, or between the false and the true Self. When you cloak intention in feel-good notions but have preference, you invite opposition to guide your life.

When intentions are free of agenda and fuelled by attitudes of higher living, you are in full transparency—a luminous presence whose compelling Song of Self reverberates through the environment where all life may benefit by it.

Any agenda or preference is a disruption of peace, because it states that in this moment you are not complete or content. Desires that have delayed fulfilment cause linear time and pull at life. Agenda'ed intentions force the will of the small self on life.

Stop trying to 'get' from life, but rather seek to be in balance and harmony, and you will find that life becomes more effortless and you become a gentle, benevolent presence within it. In appreciation and recognition of all expressions of life and all levels of existence, you experience yourself as part of a vast ecosystem that is sustained in mutuality.

There are three levels of intention that represent stages of awakening, and determine the level of alchemy that we may partake in, in co-creating our lives.

- A first level of mastery is achieving mutuality with our environment through goodwill, reverent recognition, and harmlessness.
- A second level of mastery comes when you have self-scrutinized to the point where you live in agendalessness. You then recognize that as you serve yourself, you serve all life.
- A third level of mastery comes when any thought, feeling, word, or deed is inevitable as there is only the highest choice in each moment—anything else does not exist in your reality. It can be said that you are then beyond intention and simply in inevitability...one with Infinite Intent.

Your intentions are the first ingredient in the alchemy of co-creating your life. It is time to release all intentions of the small self that wants for itself, and embrace only that which aligns with Infinite Intent through surrendered trust, and serves all life.

In peaceful intentions, you will find boundless support and affirmation for your life.

Contemplate the following principles (from Divinity and Elfin Quest), as you align deeply in peaceful intentions in your life.

Nature is a state of being, rather than a location. In silent communion with ourselves, do we discover that the answer to the starry skies is the Infinite within us, and that our breath carries our intent as surely as the trade-winds blow the sweet fragrance of spices across the lands.

The master does not fight external circumstances, but diligently safeguards his attitudes. It is the attitudes we cultivate in response to life that shapes our experiences.

Unquestioning devotion to truth demands that we self-examine the origins and motives of our actions. Becoming our own unbiased observer replaces self-indulgence with unblemished transparency.

Let the pure tones of clear intent permeate your actions. The need to defend such actions should never be an issue. The innocence of experience, lived from our highest vision and purest intent, fulfills the destiny of all life forms: To discover itself anew through interaction with its environment.
